nights of struggle, with all the responsibilities and sorrows of a nation fighting for its life thrust upon him, had broken down his strength, and for a time undermined even his courage.

He had travelled some in disguise and, at night from Washington to Brooklyn to gain the sympathy and help of one whom he knew as a man of God, engaged in the same great battle in which he was the leader. Alone for hours that night the two had wrestled together in prayer with the God of battles and the Watcher over the right until they had received the help which he had promised to those who seek His aid. Whichever were the conditions and religious belief of Abraham Lincoln, there is no doubt that he believed in prayer, and made that the source of his strength."

WATSON YOUR COWS.

& Co., Naparima.

Mrs. HAVING had wonderful success with your Liniment with my stock, I am glad to write you in my own name. Our cattle were troubled with caked bags, they had to be milked by hand, but as your Douglas' Eucalypt Liniment called twice, and in twenty-four hours the milk came out as well as anything in our house. I will as ever use your Liniment is called for if it never has failed. Hoping this will assist you in putting forward your Liniment on earth. I return yours truly,

ROBERT HARKNESS.

144, Cent. Rd.

I have much pleasure in recommending your Liniment for caked bags in my stock. It is the best preparation I have known.

After about five poured on the threshold to in order that other marriages may follow. With this the bride's girl friends will sometimes drench the doorstep with boiling water from kettles heated for the purpose of keeping the threshold warm, says Home News.

In Iceland another plan is in vogue. There the bride, on reaching her husband's home, has to give a dinner cooked with her own hands to show low wife has been attracted to the person who is now endeavoring to please the guests, her skill does not only redound to her own honor, but also to that of her whole family, and her sister-in-law, who is a very rational advocate, is considered likely to make good wives.

A Menace to Vasele.

The action of the mysterious loadstone mountain which drew the nails out of the spikes that applied to her, though enough has a certain foundation in fact, says the Sicile, only the fact has suffered by expansion. On the coast of Norway, near Jødøen, there is a sand dune of nearly three-quarters of a mile in length. The sand is mixed with particles of loadstone, and when a ship comes in the vicinity the compass becomes irregular, and the vessel is entangled in a kind of whirlpool and thrown ashore.

Lavalais's Death.
Without the contrasted patience of moral and physical pain there are men of high intellect for whom the latter has no terrors. The chemist Lavalais was summoned during the reign of terror in France to his death. He calmly requested a few days in order to see the result of some experiments which he had in progress—in vain. This great philosopher of his day fell an immediate martyr to the political necessities of the ruthless tyrant Robespierre.

He stepped into the house. A minute later the sergeants had passed on, and Lagers and Chambers in their turn came near the bed. When they appeared, they asked who it was that had just come in disguised as a clown. They were told that no masked person had entered and that none of the lodge had gone out disguised that night.

"However," added the conspirator, "I am not very sure, for this is the back door which opens on St. Denis she longed and desires within herself to hear lips to pronounce the words "I love you" and the dog at the sight of the quarrel—"twenty millions!" twenty millions!" repeated, trembling with excitement, "I wish to know what twenty millions are like."

"Twenty millions?" said Peppo, seizing her by the arm to restrain her from this state of hysterical dity. "Perhaps you wish to bring me down from the street up to the lists?"

"Listen," she continued in a voice, his mouth almost touching her ear. "The twenty millions are the golden nuggets of our times, the diamonds of our age are doubtless hidden away somewhere which we tread every day and are there, only we must dig to find them."

he had thought no more of it. It was the romance, or rather the history, which Peppo recounted to his sister. From time to time he interrupted her with a bitterness of language. "At the twenty millions?" asked she. "Where do they come in at twenty millions you promise?" "The twenty millions! Have you not said to me: 'We shall come to them!'?" "You might well recommend that to your sister, for she has no other left. She drank in the words, as the saying goes: 'Go on! Go on!'" she said. "Very well," continued the young man.

and that I am free from that constant headache that quite unmoved me as a child. I am now healthy. My kidneys have been so irrigated that there remains no impurities or incumbrances from the secretions. I wish you could see my father. He is sixty-five years of age and is still doing his work. Kidney Tablets have been of great service to him. He suffered many years from the same ailment. Now he is sprightly and shrewd as a young man. He says never anything before did him as much—good as Pritchard's Tablets. I am confident that those who have been afflicted with kidney troubles and back and aching limbs will find that themselves will be benefited by using Dr. Pritchard's Backache Kidney Tablets.
